Please state why a Lawful Development Certificate should be granted

Russell Cain at Bury Council has been in charge of my case requesting the removal of a restrictive covenant on our property and after taking measurements and speaking to both the building regulations team and the planning team, they have confirmed that we did not require planning permission, nor did we require building regulations.

we built the above without realising a restrictive covenant was on the property. we have been advised that since we are moving house, we should apply for the certificate, so that we have legal standing to confirm that no planning permission or building regulations were required. Russell said he is also recommending that the restricted covenant be lifted/amended - we are just waiting for the costs to be confirmed and we can then proceed.

Details of the pre-application advice received

Russell received the following from Helen Leach - Development Management - 'if the owner wants written confirmation that planning permission was not required, then they would need to apply for a certificate of lawfulness.'

Edward Dawson - Senior Building Control Officer also advised that 'the structures would be classed as exempt and do not require building regulations consent.

Russell then advised that 'once we have the lawfulness certificate in place, he did not see a problem with recommending that the covenant be removed or adjusted.'

With respect to the Authority, is the applicant and/or agent one of the following:

(b) an elected member
(c) related to a member of staff
(d) related to an elected member

It is an important principle of decision-making that the process is open and transparent.

For the purposes of this question, "related to" means related, by birth or otherwise, closely enough that a fair-minded and informed observer, having considered the facts, would conclude that there was bias on the part of the decision-maker in the Local Planning Authority.

Do any of the above statements apply?
