

The principles set out in PFE require that a holistic approach to drainage options for the entire site should be completed to optimise the use of green SuDS in particular and avoid compartmentalising the approach to the drainage of the whole site.

A site wide Masterplan is essential to demonstrate that the hierarchy of drainage options has been correctly applied and that drainage designs for one land parcel do not compromise the ability to optimise green SuDS options for the other subsequent parcels of development.