

GMEU response

I am not aware of any ecological issues associated with this site that would prevent planning permission being granted though this is most likely owing to a lack of survey effort. Given however its small size and development history, I would also regard it as very unlikely that there would be any ecological issue that would prevent permission being granted.

I would recommend that as part of any technical details stage a preliminary ecological appraisal and biodiversity net gain statement was provided.

Ecologist

Planning and Transportation